

Dan Román, D.M.A.

dan@foreversound.com www.foreversound.com

Puerto Rican composer Dan Román has developed a compositional style integrating elements of the folkloric music from the Caribbean with the mechanics of minimalism and the aesthetics of postmodern art. His music has been performed in Puerto Rico, Europe, South America and throughout the United States, including performances at the 34th International Viola Congress in 2006, the 2005 Guitar Foundation of America Convention, CCSN's 4th Annual International New Music Festival, and as part of the Hartford Commissions Concerts at Merkin Hall in New York. In addition, Dan Román has received commissions to write new pieces for the Alturas Duo, the New World Trio, The Irrelevants, the Goldspiel & Provost Guitar Duo, the Connecticut Children's Choir, and others.

Music Courses Taught

Composition (MUSC 200) - Trinity College:

To inform the student on a number of basic techniques, as well as stylistic, historical and theoretical ideas that will facilitate the creation of a written musical work, and to expand our understanding of what music is (or may be), and how to use this understanding to create new music.

Diatonic and Chromatic Harmonic Practice (MUSC 201 and 202) - Trinity College:

This pair of courses focuses on the study of the harmonic practices of European and American music of the 18th and 19th centuries. Integrated practicum sessions focus on the development of skills in sight-singing, dictation, score-reading and basic keyboard proficiency.

Electronic MIDI & Computer Music (MUSC 208) - Trinity College:

Intended for music students who want to acquire skills in the creation and production of modern electronic music through the use of computer hardware and software, including the incorporation of MIDI sequencing, electronic score editing, basic audio recording and mixing procedures, and audio sampling editing and manipulation.

Post-Colonial Latin American Music (MUSC 223) - Trinity College:

A survey of folkloric, popular, and classical music from Latin America, concentrating on the main composers, genres, and musicians of Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, and the Spanish Caribbean.

Music of the 20th Century (MUSC 313) - Trinity College:

An intensive survey of the developments in musical style from the late-1890s to the present day, primarily in Europe and the Americas. This course synthesizes historical studies of the composers and their times, and analytical approaches to their compositional practices.

Basic Musicianship (MUSC 101) - Trinity College:

An introduction to the melodic, rhythmic, and harmonic structure of tonal music, with the emphasis on the development of a chordal vocabulary equally adaptable to classical and popular music.

Additional Skills

- Training and extensive practical experience with music production software on both Mac and PC, including Finale, Apple Logic, Digital Performer, Mackie Tracktion, Adobe Audition, Sony SoundForge, and several other MIDI, sequencing and audio editing applications.
- Training and extensive experience with other computer software, including Windows 95/97/Me/2000/XP, Vista and 7, MS Office (in particular Word, Excel, PowerPoint and Access), Adobe Photoshop and Acrobat Professional, CorelDraw, Dreamweaver, and FTP client software. Experience with Mac software, including Mac OS X, Entourage, Safari, Apple Remote Desktop, and Microsoft Office 2004.
- Experience using teaching-related online tools such as Moodle, Blackboard, and WebCT.
- Extensive knowledge of library work, including circulation and reference services, course reserves and archival collections, digitization of materials, supervision of student staff, and direct contact with faculty, students and other library patrons.
- Spanish as a first language. Basic reading proficiency of Italian, Portuguese and French.
